ening Scene of Dismembered Bodles. Furious Survivors Seek Revenge. New York, July 21 .- A gang of Italian aborers were at work ballasting on the Asharp Grove, about three-lourths of a mile above Hopokus, between that place and Allendale. The Chicago Express which was due an hour before had not ar rived, and these men were busy at work unconscious of the terrible fate which was in store for them. At a quarter past seven rushed round the curve before the mer had the slightest warning, dashed through them, killing twelve or fifteen on the spot and wounding many others. A SICKENING SIGHT.

The shrieks of the victims were heartending, and when the train slowed up he track presented the sickening sight of being covered with mangled bodies, the rails being epattered with blood, and blood, broken limbs, and pleese of ragged flesh being coattered in all directions. Some of the bodies were mangled beyond description and examples the property of the property of the bodies were mangled beyond ims death must have come instantant tims death must have come instantane-cusly, but some of them appeared to be yet quivering and life obbing away when the train was brought to a standetill. There was only fifteen minutes delay, and the train which had wrought so much dis-sater pecceeded on its way from Allendale to Hopokus. The question of who is to blame is yet to be settled, but it is claimed that it was the duty of the foreman of the gang of laborers to watch for approaching gang of laborers to watch for approaching trains at the dangerous curve, and that he must have neglected to listen for the warning whistle. STORY OF A WITNESS.

Mr. L. Hudson, a passenger on the local train which was behind the Chicago Express, in coversation with a reporter, descattled the scene as one of the most sick-oning that could be wincessed. "Along the tracks," he said, "were arms, lege, trunks and other parts of bodies, and the tracks for a long distance were elippery with blood. The disaster must have taken with blood. The disaster must have taken place with xuch appalling suddenness that the men did not know till the train was down on them. The conductor of the train on which I rode said that the train hands of the express were not to blame; he believed the toreman of the gang was responsible for the disaster by neglecting to give warning."

ASRING AREAD AT FIFTY MILES AN HOUR Another account of the terrible accident sys that about 100 Italians were at work and the Italians stepped onto the other track to allow the train to go by, but just then the Chicago express thundered down on them at the rate of fifty miles an hour and literally moved its way through, slinging the unfortunates right and left, tearing arms and legs and heads off and grinding flesh into the roadbed for two or three hundred feet. So ferce were the oothing but human beings, the cow catcher was torn, twisted and broke into pieces. WHEELING AGAIN DOWNED.

"Downed again!" was the mournful refrain heard all over town last evening, when the result of the game of ball played at Sandusky by the Wheeling team was received. It was not news that the adairers of the club could well enthuse over, for it told of the fifth defeat the club has suffered in the seven games it has played on its present tour. And this is made doubly depressing when one thinks of the proud boasts made when the reorganized club started out, as to the number of scalps it would bring home. In yesterday's game it apparently had a narrow escape from another whitewash. The management that will put a nine in the field without a reserve pitcher being in the number when there were three extra ones to be had, is something that many will question the wisdom of. It will be noticed from the following report that Sandasky dropped on to Mallory at a rather early stage. Had there been a pitcher in one of the fields who could have been moved in to the box, the result might not have been so disastrous. Better things are hoped for today. ganized club started out, as to the numbe

This inspires confidence in the scheme This inspires confidence in the scheme of extension, and gives point to a number of vague reports recently circulated. One of these is that steps are to be taken to transfer to the W. & L. E. road the subscription of $150,000 made by Ohio county to the Cannon Ball line. Neither road, under the terms of the subscription, can avail itself of a cent of the subscription until the track is laid in Wheeling and the cars running over the river bridge into the city.

Some time ago there was raised in this city a subscription of $350,000 toward the bridge. This fact was never before printed. The subscription was made in the form of traffic bonds, the company building the bridge to earn the money by the transportation of freight. A gentleman visited Wheeling last September to make careful inquiry into the amount of freight handled here. His report to the syndicate whom he represented was definite and satisfactory, and it is now believed by those on the inside of the matter that it is only a matter of a very short time when a

It looks as if some of the citizens in the northern part of Ohio were incorporating railroads for the purpose of circumventing the Intor-State Commerce law.
